

LONELY PATRONS

Designed by Pinayu

INTRO

Your character possesses an innate talent for designing one-page solo TTRPGs. They know that their games somehow change lives thanks to their unique GIFT: the dreamlike magic they imbue into the page when they dream. One day, they discover that some inhabitants of the continent of TANFEL suffer from loneliness. As soon as they learn this, they understand and accept their destiny: to find these individuals and ease their lives through their art.

DESTINY

At just 16 years old, your character says goodbye to their family and, with their RPG design tools and materials, sets out to meet their FIRST PATRON. The benefactor offers them shelter during the days they spend designing the TTRPG, as they share activities and conversations. Each playthrough is a unique and unrepeatable experience together. Afterwards, they continue traveling for several years until they find another lonely patron.

YOUR CHARACTER

Your character masters several disciplines: writing premises and tables, design and layout, rules creation, as well as illustration. Beyond their artistic side, they can be however you wish in any other aspect. Note down anything you consider important to remember. Answer some of the following questions to learn more about their life. Some questions may be answered in future playthroughs:

- When and how did they discover TTRPGs?
- Where does their GIFT come from? Is it inherited, taught by someone, born by chance, or awakened by an event?
- What else are they passionate about?
- Who sees them off when they leave home?
- What do they sacrifice for this journey?
- What flaw do they always try to hide?
- How do they manage to find these lonely patrons?
- How do they feel about getting older?
- How do they feel when saying goodbye?
- What did they learn from their last patron?

HOW TO PLAY

The GAME STRUCTURE focuses on the days your character spends with a patron. After finishing the design of the TTRPG, 1d6+1 years pass as they travel the world and experience a significant event. You decide when to bring the journey to an end, although the game suggests concluding it at age 80, when they have barely enough strength for such long travels. What will they do upon retiring? Will they return to their hometown? Will they live with one of their patrons? Will they end their days in solitude? Write or imagine the epilogue they truly deserve.

STRUCTURE

Before entering the gameplay loop that repeats until the SOLO TTRPG design is complete, roll all the dice to determine what the LANDSCAPE is like. Likewise, roll them to find out what the PATRON is like. You can play everything in your imagination, keep brief notes, or approach it as if it were a journaling game. I personally prefer limiting each playthrough to a single patron, but you decide your way to play.

Arrival	That night, and after processing the results of the LANDSCAPE (page 4) and PATRON (page 5) rolls, it is time to imagine or write a welcome conversation with your patron. Rest, and enter the gameplay loop:
Loop	• MORNING (pages 6 and 7): design the SOLO TTRPG. • AFTERNOON (page 8): share an activity with the patron. • NIGHT (page 9): dine and talk with the patron.
Ending	When you reduce your WORK POINTS (WPs) to 0, it's time to DELIVER IT and SAY GOODBYE (page 10). Resume THE JOURNEY and experience an EVENT (page 11).

Full session

And then it begins again, 1d6+1 years later...

NECESSARY

You'll use these dice: 1d4, 2d6, 1d8, 2d10, 1d12, 1d20. A physical or digital medium is useful for taking notes, drawing, and writing. The slash (/) means you must choose an option.

NEED MORE INFORMATION?

You ask and roll 1d6: 1-3 Yes / Idea A, 4-6 No / Idea B

You also have the 600 Adjectives (pages 12 & 13)

MORNING: DESIGNING

You start with 30 Work Points (WPs), which you reduce each morning with the design roll. The goal is to reach 0 WPs; once you do, the design is complete. What die do you roll?

- Do you have 20 or more WPs left? Roll 1d20.
- Do you have between 12 and 19 WPs left? Roll 1d12.
- Do you have 10 or 11 WPs left? Roll 1d10.
- Do you have 8 or 9 WPs left? Roll 1d8.
- Do you have 6 or 7 WPs left? Roll 1d6.
- Do you have 5 or fewer WPs left? Roll 1d4.

What happens if, when rolling 1d4, you end up below 0? If you get a negative number, convert it into a positive one.

Two examples:

You have 2 Work Points left to finish. You roll 1d4 and get a 3 ($2-3 = -1$); that -1 becomes 1 WP, and you continue playing. And what if you have 1 WP left and roll a 4? ($1-4 = -3$). That -3 becomes 3 WPs... You keep trying until you hit exactly 0.

Once reduced to 0 WPs, you may choose to deliver it immediately or spend the afternoon and night with the patron.

DREAM MAGIC

Every midnight, they dream of inhabiting the role-playing game. This strange dream is closely connected to the TTRPG's theme, the patron's personality, and what they learn about their life. Through this, they infuse the page with powerful sensory depth, allowing the patron to experience immersive sessions. And, with luck, beyond enjoyment, it may also ease their days of loneliness.

SYSTEM

Roll or choose a system for the TTRPG:

1 PBtA 2 D20 3 2D6 4 Rules-light 5 Freeform 6 FKR 7 Jenga tower 8 Tarot 9 Poker cards 10 D100 / BRP 11 Fate 12 OSR 13 Crunchy 14 Narrative 15 Belonging Outside Belonging 16 1D6 17 1D6 and Poker cards 18 Journaling 19 All the dice 20 Another system or your own custom-made one (35 WPs)

IMPROVEMENT

Before delivering the TTRPG, you may improve your delivery bonus. Two attempts are allowed each morning:

- +1 Roll 1d6. If you get 3+, you gain +1 to the delivery roll.
- +2 (requires +1) Roll 1d6. If you get 4+, it increases to +2.
- +3 (requires +2) Roll 1d6. If you get 5+, it increases to +3.

- +1: The TTRPG stands out for its layout and readability.
- +2: Everything above, plus creative rules and evocative text.
- +3: Everything above, plus spectacular visual design.

CREATIVE PROCESS

For each roll and reduction of Work Points, imagine or write what you have designed that morning. Do it in any order you like, or base it on these disciplines: rules, layout, writing, and illustration. Another option is to assign a meaning to each die. Examples:

- 1d20: Research, system selection, premise, layout draft, and main illustration sketch.
- 1d12: Adapting the content to a 2, 3, or 4 columns, font, and making it visually understandable.
- 1d10, 1d8, and 1d6: Additional design and illustration work.
- 1d4: Testing, final touches, grammatical corrections, and text improvements.

STUCK ON 1D4

Getting stuck on 1d4 rolls means it's not so easy to make everything fit together, feel fun, and look good. If you spend too many mornings on the 1d4, you may decide it's not worth pursuing such obsessive perfection and call it finished. Penalty: +1 becomes the maximum improvement.

- You may skip an afternoon activity or an evening conversation to work a bit more. Does the patron get angry?

AFTERNOON: ACTIVITIES

Roll 1d100 twice and choose one of the activities rolled. One day, try suggesting an activity yourself.

1 jogging 2 meditate 3 fishing 4 hunting 5 book club 6 catch bugs 7 hiking 8 drink tasting 9 cook 10 take a bath 11 role-playing 12 play cards / dice 13 clean 14 repair 15 look for fruit 16 tell jokes 17 listen to music 18 play music / sing 19 pick herbs 20 climb 21 go on adventures 22 look for treasure 23 race 24 pet animals 25 create objects 26 take a nap 27 carpentry 28 kendo 29 archery 30 create jewelry 31 knit 32 dance 33 have a drink 34 have a snack 35 review photos 36 create a spell 37 create a potion 38 visit a monument 39 sunset 40 pick mushrooms 41 sport - ball 42 makeup 43 fashion 44 fight monsters 45 invent something 46 watch a movie 47 telescope 48 look for ghosts 49 dig a hole 50 explore a cave 51 take care of the garden 52 take care of nature 53 cure an animal 54 listen to nature 55 acrobatics 56 bicycle 57 create a weapon 58 pick flowers 59 poetry 60 paint 61 make a cake 62 redecorate 63 pick up trash 64 lift weights 65 break things 66 smells 67 hugs / photographs 68 coffee / dressing up 69 act - play 70 cartography 71 calligraphy 72 video games 73 learn a language 74 look for gemstones 75 jump into the water 76 rollerskate / skateboard 77 sail 78 take care of a farm 79 study a topic 80 watch a play 81 watch a comedian 82 predict the future 83 count and sort resources 84 build furniture 85 carry packages 86 help the disadvantaged 87 write letters 88 yoga / pilates 89 solve a mystery 90 paint a house 91 crafts 92 walk 93 visit neighbor 94 daydreaming 95 painting figurines 96 martial arts 97 sunbathing 98 swimming / diving 99 [patron talent] 100 [about the landscape]

YOUR ENJOYMENT

You roll 1d12 and evaluate the feeling left by the afternoon's activity; add color using the 600 Adjectives table.

- 1 I was bored this time...
- 2 I learned something interesting.
- 3 Lots of jokes and laughter.
- 4 There was a really cool vibe.
- 5 This isn't my thing...
- 6 I kept looking at my watch...
- 7 It was a fun time.
- 8 We got to know each other better.
- 9 It was quite inspiring.
- 10 I felt like I didn't fit in...
- 11 I got hurt during the activity...
- 12 They got hurt during the activity...

NIGHT: CHAT

As you dine, you enjoy a deep conversation, share a few anecdotes, spend some time joking around, or simply gather for the pleasure of each other's company.

Roll 1d6 to determine the tone. Then roll 1d100 to find out the topic of your conversation. Rolling 1d100 twice and combining the results enhances the experience.

DELIVERY

You roll 2d6 + enhancement bonus:

- 2-4 It doesn't fully convince them, but they keep it...
- 5-7 They appreciate it and say they'll play it soon.
- 8-9 They find it interesting and are eager to try it.
- 10 Their smile reflects great enthusiasm.
- 11 It touches their heart, and they thank you profusely.
- 12+ They are moved to tears and give you a heartfelt hug.
They can't wait to play it.

Roll 1d6 to find out what they love most about the game:

1 Texts 2 Design 3 Illustration 4 Freedom 5 Rules 6 Themes

FAREWELL

Based on how the days have unfolded and how the patron has reacted to the delivery of the SOLO RPG, roleplay the farewell. In addition to paying a generous sum of coins, a parting gift might also make sense. Reflect on the time you spent together and decide whether there is an item the patron would like your character to keep as a memento.

PROPOSAL

Do you want to propose anything to the patron before you leave?
It can also be used for any interaction.

You decide how your relationship is: cordial (+0), kind (+1), excellent (+2) or super special (+3).

You roll 2d6 + relationship bonus:

- 7- They make excuses or don't find it appropriate.
- 8-10 They accept if the interaction or proposal seems reasonable.
- 11+ They accept without reservation and with pleasure.

PASSAGE OF TIME

Roll 1d6+1 to determine how many years pass before your next patron appears. During these years, your character travels across different corners of TANFEL, making a living thanks to their artistic skills. It's time to choose the most important EVENT of those years: after adding 1d6+1 years, select either the event corresponding to your current age or the one from the previous year. You may use the "600 Adjectives" supplement (pages 12–13) for inspiration when developing the event. If you want longer time skips, roll 1d8+2.

HOW TO USE 600 ADJECTIVES

Roll 1d6 + 1d100

- Hundreds: 1d6
- Tens: 1d10
- Units: 1d10

1d6 = 6, 1d100 = 0 & 2
The number is 602.

If the result doesn't fit well, try the previous or next number.

EXAMPLES

I'm rolling for an afternoon mushroom hunting activity.

I get 582 = open

I interpret this as: we found all kinds of mushrooms spread across a wide area.

I'm going for the music-making activity.

I get 295 = lukewarm

We play a calm melody that doesn't really excite us.

On my journey, an important event arises: learning a language.

I get 448 = whistling

I interpret this as: I'm learning a language expressed through whistles.

The important event this time is about meeting a friend.

I get 197 = dusty

She's a desert nomad who once saved my life, and I owe her one.

TIP

No idea you come up with is wrong if it has some connection to the adjective.

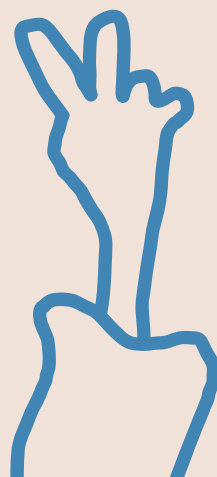

TIPS

- Read the entire zine before starting to play.
- One playthrough = one patron + the important event.
- Handle the creative process however you like. If it feels slow or tedious, avoid overthinking what you design with each roll.
- If you don't like the 1d4 rule, finish the game design as soon as you reach 0 or below.
- You may occasionally interact with the patron using the PROPOSAL roll (page 10).
- You may ask to the patron and use the 600 Adjectives table as a response oracle.
- You may play without writing, although you may still need to track your remaining Work Points (WPs).
- Streamline the parts you enjoy less and focus on what you truly find fun.
- Every three sessions, you can choose a patron and imagine how their life changed thanks to your TTRPG.
- Imagine what you tell the patron about the One-page design while spending time together in the afternoon or evening.
- You can cancel the delivery and keep playing with that patron if you're not satisfied with the delivery's score.

TWO PLAYERS

Remember to use safety tools and reach an agreement on the type of experience you want to have.

- Designer and patron: the second player takes on the role of the patron and handles the setting creation rolls, patron creation, afternoon activity selection, and evening conversation. They may also choose options instead of rolling when they wish. In general, they handle all rolls that do not depend on the designer.
- Two designers: it is possible to play as a pair of designers traveling together and sharing the same lifestyle. In this case, you must negotiate what each work roll means and roleplay together as teamwork. Be careful if you decide to be more than professional partners or friends. Note: ask yourselves how you met and whether you both possess the GIFT.
- Three players: a mix of both modes; one player is the patron and the other two are designers.
